- The Greater Hall Chamber of Commerce is hosting a Small Business Seminar: Culture as a Legacy – Navigating Succession Planning with an Ownership Mindset on Tuesday, June 9th, from 8:15 AM to 9:30 AM, at the Greater Hall Chamber of Commerce (230 E.E. Butler Parkway, Gainesville, GA 30501). Looking at culture in business is a critical component of long-term success, especially when considering transitions like succession planning. Every company has a culture, and a good one boost profitability, reduces turnover and fosters innovation. By treating culture as a strategic asset rather than an afterthought, businesses can create a "Line of Sight" where every associate understands their personal impact on the company's valuation and long-term future. Even if your business right now is only you, customers and clients will appreciate your vision for how you want your legacy to look. Click here to learn more and register.

Most founders are laser-focused on revenue. But revenue alone won't move your business from an income-producing entity to an asset with real, transferable value. That shift depends on four intangible capital areas: Customer, Human, Structural, and Social. They might be the most important things you're not measuring. Together, ATV will break down each component and how to use them to scale faster, attract investment, and exit on your terms. Click here to learn more and register.

- The Greater Hall Chamber of Commerce is hosting a Small Business Seminar: Stop Being the Bottleneck – How to Build a Business That Outlasts You on Tuesday, July 14th, from 8:15 AM to 9:30 AM, at the Greater Hall Chamber of Commerce (230 E.E. Butler Parkway, Gainesville, GA 30501). Most business owners are building something that depends entirely on them, and they do not realize it until it is too late. In this talk, Tess Helmandollar breaks down the 10 Pillars of Transferable Value from her book The Legacy Link, revealing what actually makes a business scalable, sustainable, and sellable. Drawing from experience and hard-earned perspective, she will challenge the way you think about growth, leadership, and control, and introduce new concepts from her upcoming work, Toxic Grace, which exposes the hidden habits quietly holding businesses back. Whether you plan to sell, scale, or simply breathe again, this session will show you how to build a business that works for you, and outlasts you. Click here to learn more and register.

At the same time, hiring pressure is rising, people costs are growing, and recruiting software stacks are becoming harder to manage. In this webinar, we explore how recruiting is changing in 2026, based on insights from Software Advice’s 2026 HR Software Trends survey of 1,000 HR leaders. We’ll unpack how AI adoption, skills-based hiring, and consolidation pressures are reshaping recruiting — and what high-performing teams are doing differently to reduce risk and improve decision quality. - Bonterra is hosting From Overwhelmed to Growth-Focused: Build Your Strategic Plan in 6 Months on Tuesday, June 2nd, starting at 1:00 PM. Here’s the reality for small nonprofit leaders: Strategic planning feels impossible when you’re already stretched thin managing programs, operations, AND fundraising. Without a clear roadmap, your best intentions stall, your board disengages, and growth feels out of reach. But here’s what we learned: It doesn’t have to be that way. StudentsCare, a lean nonprofit based in Pennsylvania, proved it. In just 6 months, they went from “we need a plan” to having a board-approved strategic roadmap that’s now actively guiding their fundraising, board engagement, and program growth. Save your seat today and walk away with a clear blueprint for your nonprofit’s next chapter of growth. Click here to learn more and register.
- Brookings is hosting a webinar on Understanding the Costs of Social Media on Tuesday, June 2nd, from 1:00 PM to 2:30 PM. On June 2nd, The Hamilton Project at the Brookings Institution will host a virtual event exploring the costs of social media, including overuse driven by addiction and “fear of missing out” (FOMO). In conjunction with the event, The Hamilton Project will release two publications discussing the findings and policy implications of recent economic research on product market traps in social media and on digital addiction. - The International Economic Development Council (IEDC) is hosting Beyond Jobs: Rethinking KPIs for Modern Investment Attraction on Tuesday, June 2nd, starting at 1:00 PM. Economic development has evolved rapidly over the past decade, shaped by shifting global dynamics, remote work, and the rise of artificial intelligence. Yet many organizations continue to rely on traditional KPIs like job creation as the primary measure of success. The reality is that these metrics no longer capture the full impact of investment attraction

- The International Economic Development Council (IEDC) is hosting an Entrepreneurship-Led Economic Development course starting Wednesday, June 3rd, from 10:30 AM to 5:30 PM. Creating an entrepreneurial ecosystem goes beyond simply launching businesses— it's about cultivating an environment where innovation can thrive. In this course, you'll explore every stage of business development, from identifying resource gaps to creating a robust support network. You'll also uncover actionable strategies for measuring success and engaging key stakeholders to ensure long-term, sustainable growth. Click here to learn more and register.
- The Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) is hosting The Strategy Gap: Why HR Keeps Getting Left Out of the Room on Wednesday, June 3rd, starting at 1:00 PM. Most HR professionals hit the same wall. You're doing good work, your team is executing, and somehow HR still isn't part of the conversations that matter most. This session explains why that happens — and what to do about it. Jackson Lynch has served as CHRO four times across industries. In this session, he introduces a practical framework for diagnosing the gap between where HR is operating and where business leaders actually need it to be. You'll leave with a clear diagnosis of where the disconnect lives, guidance on how to close it, and the language your leadership team will need to make it happen. Click here to learn more and register.

- The Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) is hosting Keep it Simple: How to Reduce Unnecessary Workplace Complexity on Wednesday, June 3rd, starting at 2:00 PM. When we have goals that we want to achieve, complexity keeps us from making the most of our time. But what if it was possible to simplify our most tedious tasks and overcome the obstacles that constantly set us back? Whether in our personal or professional lives, automation makes it possible. By pulling ourselves out of complex processes and eliminating needless work, we have the power to focus on the aspects of our jobs that really matter. In this webinar, Lisa Bodell, CEO of FutureThink and bestselling author of Kill the Company and Why Simple Wins will explain how simplifying is easier than you think. - WorkforceGPS, in partnership with the U.S. Department of Labor, is hosting Building Tomorrow's Workforce: The Future of AI Literacy and Workforce Training on Wednesday, June 3rd, from 2:00 PM to 3:00 PM. During this event, attendees will explore how the public workforce system can use this resource for AI skill development for job seekers. Featuring state and local workforce leaders, the session will highlight current efforts to train and upskill individuals with AI skills and credentials. Click here to learn more and register.
- The Aspen Institute is hosting Ownership During the AI Revolution on Wednesday, June 3rd, starting at 3:30 PM. Artificial intelligence and automation promise to unleash a wave of productivity and economic growth—but without deliberate action, the gains will flow overwhelmingly to those who already own capital, deepening inequality and further disconnecting society from the value it helps create. This session explores how reimagining ownership—from broad-based worker equity to public-interest frameworks—can ensure that the AI-powered economy generates a true “social dividend” rather than a private windfall. Panelists will examine the risks of AI growth without consideration of ownership and social impact, how some organizations are already prioritizing shared value and governance, and what policy shifts could institutionalize this approach. - The Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) is hosting a webinar on How to Build an Audit-Proof Immigration Program: Tips From Government Insiders on Friday, June 5th, starting at 12:00 PM. Federal scrutiny is up across H-1B filings, prevailing wage compliance, and worksite inspections. Employers who've invested in documentation, wage compliance, and petition quality have more options — even under heightened government attention. The strongest immigration programs are built long before an audit arrives. Manifest Law's AI Legal Architect Nicole Gunara moderates a panel with Mimi Tsankov, former Federal Immigration Judge and Employer Compliance Prosecutor, and Daniel Renaud of R&R Consulting Partners, who retired after 35 years leading major USCIS and DHS operations. Walk away with a framework for building a program that absorbs scrutiny rather than reacts to it. Click here to learn more and register.

- Brookings is hosting a webinar on the Past, Present, and Future of America's School Boards on Monday, June 8th, from 11:30 AM to 1:00 PM. The 2020s have been a tumultuous time for America's school boards. The decade opened with a pandemic that required board members to make hard decisions about school reopenings and safety protocols—decisions that proved divisive in many parts of the country. Disputes over polarizing issues related to race, gender, and sexuality followed, turning school board meetings into battlegrounds for the nation's culture wars. Meanwhile, student achievement declined, absenteeism and disengagement increased, and AI-based technologies entered classrooms with little notice but profound implications. This webinar will accompany the release of two new Brookings reports on school boards. The first report analyzes how the COVID and culture-war conflicts affected school boards across the country. The second report presents findings from a nationally representative survey of school board members, documenting board members' views and experiences and exploring what has changed since the onset of the pandemic. - The Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) is hosting HSAs in a High-Cost Economy – How Employers Can Drive Affordability and Engagement on Tuesday, June 9th, starting at 12:00 PM. Rising healthcare costs are putting pressure on both employers and employees. As deductibles and out-of-pocket expenses continue to climb, organizations are being asked to help staff manage affordability — without significantly increasing total rewards spend. Health Savings Accounts (HSAs) can play a critical role in this environment, but only when they’re designed, funded, and communicated with intention. Too often, HSAs are positioned as long-term savings vehicles or, conversely, as transactional spending accounts — leaving employees confused and under-engaged. In this session, we'll show you how to reframe HSAs as a flexible affordability strategy that helps employees manage healthcare costs now while building long-term financial resilience. Employers will learn how plan design choices, employer contributions, and practical communication strategies can make HSAs feel attainable — not intimidating — across a diverse workforce. Attendees will walk away with concrete ideas to strengthen HSA engagement, lower financial friction for employees, and future-proof their total rewards strategy without chasing every new trend. - Shift Work Forward, formerly known as National Fund, is hosting a webinar on Collective Impact, Real Change: How Cross-Sector Partnerships Shift Employer Practices on Tuesday, June 9th, from 2:00 PM to 3:30 PM. The willingness and ability of employers to implement practice change is key to building equitable workplaces. While many employers have the will, they are uncertain of the way. Cross-sector collaboration can accelerate employer practice change and advance workforce equity at scale by giving employers the skills, tools, and confidence to lead change. The session highlights Chicago's collective employer programs that use a cohort model to successfully shift employer behaviors across hiring, retention, and advancement with a focus on fair chance hiring, engaging young adults as they enter the workforce, training frontline managers, and accessing "untapped" talent across Chicago. Presenters, including workforce development practitioners and employer partners, will share how cross-sector coordinated partnerships, peer learning, and coaching can support employers in moving from awareness to action. The session offers a practical, replicable framework for regions seeking to align multi-sector partnerships around equitable practice change. Click here to learn more and register.

- REMI is hosting a webinar on the Economic Impacts of Sports Team Expansion on Wednesday, June 10th, from 2:00 PM to 3:00 PM. Professional sport leagues across the United States are expanding their reach into new cities. A new team can bring high-level competition to a city, uniting the population through sports. Along with this, sporting teams bring major economic stimulus, including impacts on tourism, local business, construction, and more. Measuring these economic impacts is important to stakeholders. In this webinar, REMI will demonstrate how REMI PROSERIS and our core models can be used to quantify the economic impacts of sporting team relocations and expansion. This webinar will cover the impacts of long-term employment, disposable income, gross regional product, and more. Attendees will learn how to properly model construction and operations phases, tourism impacts, public finance, and more to see how the regional economy can be affected. - The Council for Community and Economic Research is hosting a CERP Presentation: Transforming Labor Market Reports – From Static Analysis to Interactive Dashboards on Wednesday, June 10th, starting at 3:00 PM. In this webinar Abby Latture, Senior Research Analyst with the Greater Memphis Economic Research Group, will present on the results of her Certified Economic Research Professional (CERP) project, which focuses on enhancing the delivery of labor market data through the development of an interactive Tableau dashboard. The session will begin with an overview of the Greater Memphis Economic Research Group’s existing monthly jobs reports, including how labor market data is collected, organized, and analyzed. It will then outline the process of translating these static reports into a dynamic, interactive dashboard format. The webinar will also explore how interactive dashboards improve accessibility, usability, and flexibility when communicating regional economic data. Click here to learn more and register.
- Brookings is hosting a webinar on Building the NEST: Network Practices and Learnings on Thursday, June 11th, from 8:30 AM to 9:30 AM. In an increasingly complex world, children and young people need a breadth of skills to navigate evolving challenges and participate in changing societies. The Network for Education Systems Transformation (NEST) is a global network, co-led by civil society organizations from the Global South, working to understand and catalyze education systems transformation so all learners can develop this breadth of skills. Through co-created and contextually rooted evidence, resources, and tools, NEST strengthens collaboration and builds capacity, commitment, and cohesion among education ecosystem actors. On June 11th, the Center for Universal Education at Brookings will host a conversation on the evolution of NEST as a collaborative research-action network. NEST members will reflect on their journey from 2023 until today, sharing frameworks, practices, and lessons that brought together 10 organizations around a shared mission of transforming education systems. The conversation will highlight practical insights into what it takes to build and sustain a mission-driven network. Click here to learn more and register.

- Bonterra is hosting Igniting Impact: How SparkWheel Transformed its Data Story on Thursday, June 11th, starting at 1:00 PM. Nonprofits working across multiple schools and communities often face a common challenge: how to capture meaningful data without losing sight of the people behind it. For organizations like SparkWheel – serving more than 30,000 students across 60+ schools – strong data systems aren’t just about reporting. They are essential to understanding student needs, strengthening supports, and demonstrating real outcomes. Join Judy from SparkWheel as she shares how the organization evolved its data approach to better support students, strengthen decision-making, and demonstrate impact over a period of significant growth. From early challenges with fragmented systems to building a more cohesive data strategy, this session will highlight what it takes to turn information into insight – and insight into action. ## WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT INSIGHTS

Recent Articles

- From Accenture: Supply chains keep expanding, and their complexity rises with every new node, promise and rule. For decades, leaders have matched that complexity with headcount. That approach no longer works at today's pace. Our projections show demand across core US supply chain occupations will rise by 1.34 million roles (19%) from 2026 to 2035. Over the same period, the labor force will grow by about 3.2%, adding roughly 221,000 workers. The implied gap reaches nearly 1.1 million roles. Click here to read more.
- From The Annie E. Casey Foundation: Out-of-school suspension can significantly increase the chances that young people become involved in the juvenile justice system, according to new research funded by the Annie E. Casey Foundation. According to School Discipline, Juvenile Justice System Involvement, and Academic Attainment: Insights from Massachusetts High School Students, among high school students facing the highest risk of court involvement, a single out-of-school suspension raised the likelihood of court involvement from 31% to 49%. Repeated suspensions further increased that risk. Click here to read more.
- From The Aspen Institute: The chorus of public opposition to data centers grows louder every day. This outcry is multifaceted, covering deeply held concerns about resource depletion, a lack of community consideration and benefit, and broad concern around corporate overreach. More generally, this backlash reflects unaddressed public anxiety about AI's negative impacts on both local communities and society as a whole. Server farms have become the most physical, visible symbol of the AI value chain, which has made them an easy target for public opposition. Click here to read more.

- From Brookings: Research shows that people readily apply human traits to technical systems. In everyday conversation, that framing may be harmless. In policy, however, human-like framing can blur responsibility and reinforce the misconception that AI systems act independently of the people and institutions that design, build, configure, and deploy these systems. In policy contexts, unclear framing can obscure accountability, weaken implementation, and reinforce industry narratives that dilute oversight. Click here to read more.
- From Center for American Progress: States across the country have made progress in recent years toward expanding access to affordable, high-quality child care—but they face immediate and ongoing challenges. Child care is still unaffordable in every state, and an estimated 46 percent of America’s children under age 6 live in a licensed child care desert. Even with both parents working—which is the case for more than two-thirds of the nation’s children—child care costs can consume huge portions of household income, and child care options are made even more scarce by low wages that drive early educators from the field. Click here to read more.
- From Center on Budget and Policy Priorities: Rental assistance bridges the gap between a family’s income and rent, helping prevent evictions and reduce homelessness for renters with low incomes — the people who struggle the most with affordability — such as workers in low-paying jobs or people on fixed incomes, including older adults or people with disabilities. Despite the need for and effectiveness of these programs, only 1 in every 4 low-income renters who need assistance actually receives it due to funding limitations. With the cost of food, rent, utilities, and gas rising, rental assistance is critical in helping families afford the basics. Click here to read more.
- From Economic Policy Institute: What is striking is that the AI exposure among young college graduates is considerably higher than that of young noncollege workers. If AI was driving labor market outcomes, we’d expect young college graduates to fare worse in today’s economy, e.g., see larger declines in employment or faster increases in unemployment. But, when we compare unemployment rates, both groups experienced similar increases in unemployment over the last two to three years. Click here to read more.
- From FedCommunities: The interactive, web-based tool can help users see how the job skills used at a current or recent job can transfer to one with higher income potential in the same geographical area. It can also help workforce development practitioners show job seekers the options and skills needed for certain careers. The OME taps into the power of skills-based hiring. When employers hire based on skills instead of titles and credentials, workers can experience greater economic mobility, and employers can draw on a broader pool of talent. Click here to read more.

- From the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta: Using transaction data from a payments survey in the United States, we analyze how consumers across income groups changed their spending between 2021 and 2025. We find that spending by consumers with high household income (fourth and fifth quintiles) grew substantially faster than spending by consumers with low household income (first to third quintiles), a pattern that holds across total spending, grocery spending, and spending on necessities. Both groups saw spending increases, but the gap in growth rates points to a widening of consumption inequality across the income distribution. Click here to read more.
- From Gallup Workplace Insights: The United States has the largest gap of any country in job market perceptions between younger and older adults, with the former feeling much less positive. In 2025, 43% of Americans aged 15 to 34 said it was a good time to find a job locally, 21 percentage points lower than for Americans aged 55 and older. It is rare for younger adults to be significantly less positive about local job conditions than the oldest age group. Click here to read more.
- From the International Association of Workforce Professionals (IAWP): When most people think about Registered Apprenticeships, the image is still tied to traditional trades—roles with long-established pathways and clear progression. That remains true. But it is no longer the full picture. A recent announcement from the U.S. Department of Labor signals something important: apprenticeships are moving directly into the world of artificial intelligence. Not as a future concept, but as a practical, present-day strategy. Click here to read more.
- From Jobs for the Future: As economic conditions evolve and political environments change, apprenticeship has been repeatedly positioned as a practical solution to connect workers to opportunity while helping employers fill critical roles. The current push toward one million apprentices reflects the latest phase of a long-running national effort to scale a model that has consistently delivered results but has been challenging to scale to the levels that policymakers have sought. This brief provides JFF’s analysis of where the current slowdown is coming from, which states and sectors present the largest growth opportunities, and what specific actions can accelerate the path to one million. - From JPMorganChase: As part of National Small Business Month, JPMorganChase announced nearly $40 million in new philanthropic investments to expand access to capital for entrepreneurs across the country – helping more businesses start, grow, and hire in the communities they call home. By strengthening lending capacity, technical assistance, and local small business support systems, this funding is expected to help thousands of small businesses nationwide access over $500 million in capital—13 times this philanthropic investment—and create or retain about 6,000 jobs. Click here to learn more.

- From Manpower: The aerospace and defense (A&D) industry is not yet doing enough with underrepresented talent pools. Significant potential to contribute to A&D exists among women, those from diverse backgrounds, and those in underrepresented communities. We watch as industries like financial services move to skills-based hiring, assessing people based on transferable competencies and finding great talent in unexpected places. There's no reason A&D can't do the same. Click here to read more.
- From McKinsey & Company: Strategic expansion into commercial insurance could generate meaningful growth for provider-led health plans (PLHPs). Those that combine product innovation, pricing precision, and differentiated go-to-market execution can translate their clinical integration into true competitive advantage. It's a propitious moment. Employers are seeking affordable, quality-driven solutions, which PLHPs are well positioned to deliver while improving care coordination, access, and affordability for members. - From the National Association of Colleges and Employers (NACE): Internship programs are about more than just getting quality hires in the door: Retention metrics reported in NACE's 2026 Internship & Co-op Report demonstrate the long-term ROI of having a program. According to the report, more than three-quarters of new hires who had an internship with the employer are retained after one year, and more than half remain with the organization after five years. The retention rates remain elevated for employees with internship experience at other organizations; nearly two-thirds remain after one year and nearly half stay on after five years. - From the National Association of Counties (NACO): On May 20, the U.S. House of Representatives passed (396-13) an amended version of the 21st Century ROAD to Housing Act (H.R. 6644). The revised legislation reflects direct feedback from counties and includes several NACO-supported changes that reduce local financial risk and preserve county flexibility in administering housing and community development programs. - From the National Association of Workforce Boards (NAWB): Apprenticeship is one of the most practical, proven strategies we have to strengthen our workforce and our economy. Even for those of us who have been doing this work for years, it's worth stepping back and naming what makes apprenticeship so effective. It starts with alignment. Apprenticeship meets employers where they are. Instead of asking businesses to adapt to available talent, it gives them a way to shape it. Training becomes relevant, immediate, and tied directly to real work. Click here to read more.

- From the National Conference of State Legislatures: As this year’s legislative sessions wind down, the directions states are taking on tax legislation is becoming clear. State tax landscapes have largely been defined by a divergence in approach and capacity. While some states have focused on incremental tax code shifts, others have made more significant moves aimed at either protecting revenues or reducing burdens on constituencies. These choices have often depended on underlying fiscal positions. States with stronger reserves and relatively stable revenues have been better positioned to provide tax relief, while states facing tighter conditions or growing uncertainty have been scrambling to raise revenue. - From the National League of Cities (NLC): Today, data are ubiquitous, considered an essential component of organizational decision-making, grant applications and other essential aspects of work in public service. But city leaders rarely receive formal training on how to interpret, use and communicate about data effectively, leaving municipal leaders without a crucial tool in the work they do to help communities. At the same time, people across the country are asking their elected leaders for transparency in how they use data to guide governing decisions. Click here to read more.
- From the National Fund for Workforce Solutions: Inflation is on the rise again, and many families are struggling to make ends meet. Childcare and transportation costs soar while wages stagnate. These pressures are especially acute for workers in low-wage roles, which account for nearly half of U.S. employees. These workers are more likely to be women and people of color, deepening racial and gender inequities in income and wealth. Click here to read more.
- From the National Skills Coalition: The Department of Education has released the final rules for states and institutions of higher education to utilize when implementing Workforce Pell Grants. These rules mark an important next step in shaping how states, community colleges, and other eligible institutions implement Pell Grants for short-term, high-quality programs that expand access to good jobs while ensuring businesses — especially small and mid-sized businesses— strengthen talent pipelines. Click here to read more.
- From Prosperity Now: Financial scams are becoming more sophisticated, faster-moving, and harder to identify in real time, especially for community-based financial institutions and the individuals and small businesses they serve. To help address this challenge, Prosperity Now announced a new partnership with Alumbra to develop an accessible, AI-powered scam prevention platform designed to help community-based financial institutions and their clients identify suspicious activity, better understand potential risks, and take action before financial losses occur. The initiative is supported through a new philanthropic investment from JPMorganChase as part of the firm's broader national efforts to strengthen fraud and scam prevention. - From the Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM): There's a striking disconnect — despite the rapid growth of artificial intelligence within the HR function, many HR leaders are not keeping pace with AI policies. Recent findings from SHRM's AI in HR report reveal that as of February 2026, 19 of the most populous U.S. states have enacted AI laws or regulations affecting employment-related decision-making and transparency. Still, 57% of HR professionals working in those states say they are unaware of the policies governing their use of AI. Click here to read more.

- From the Urban Institute: Registered Apprenticeships are a proven solution for helping employers meet their talent needs and workers gain the skills to access high-quality career pathways. Yet only a small fraction of employers and workers participate in the apprenticeship system. Further, research shows that small and medium-sized businesses (those with fewer than 100 employees, or between 100 and 499 employees, respectively) both experience the greatest return on investment from Registered Apprenticeship programs and face the greatest financial and administrative barriers to participating in the Registered Apprenticeship system. Click here to read more.
- From the U.S. Chamber of Commerce: New technologies are making pricing more dynamic, personalized, and sometimes harder for consumers and rivals to observe and compare. These shifts raise familiar questions about the line between competition policy and consumer protection, and how antitrust should treat pricing practices that may increase efficiency or output while reshaping how prices are discovered and experienced in the market. Click here to read more.
- From Workday: The IT lifecycle is predictable. A new hire joining the company needs equipment and systems access. A manager changing roles needs new permissions. An employee leaving the company triggers device returns and account deactivation. All of these events originate in Workday. However, the actual fulfillment often happens elsewhere in ticketing queues, manual spreadsheets, or ad-hoc approvals. Click here to read more.
- From Workforce Monitor: Staffing employment edged down during the week of May 11–17, with the ASA Staffing Index decreasing by 0.2% to a value of 88. Staffing companies cited no one particular factor that hindered growth. Staffing jobs were 4.8% higher compared with the same period last year, up from 4.6% recorded the previous week. New starts, however, increased in the 20th week of the year, up 6.9% from the prior week. More than half of staffing companies (54%) reported gains in new assignments week to week, above the average of 41% so far in 2026. Click here to read more.

- From WorkingNation: There's no single definition of rural America. Some rural communities are a small, but bustling, town center surrounded by vast swatches of farm land. Other communities are mountainous with a few homes and businesses scattered about the region. What they have in common is a population that wants to live and work in a community that offers a slower pace of life, one with financial stability. Providing quality jobs is key to making that happen. It takes a coalition of partners to make it work. While the number of U.S. farms continues a slow decline, and with tech playing an expanding role in all industries, the rural American job market is diversifying. The shift from traditional agricultural jobs towards manufacturing, clean energy, and health care is creating new opportunities that can provide that economic mobility and security. Click here to read more.
- From WorkRise: American workers face multiple challenges, including rising prices, a growing role of artificial intelligence in the workplace, and uncertain federal budgets and policy. These challenges compound the difficulties of an already weakening US labor market. Workforce research and investment must continue adapting to this evolving landscape, and insights from the WorkRise Field Survey can help focus those efforts. Click here to read more.

MAX PROVIDER PORTAL

The MAX Provider Portal was launched in 2014 to help local leaders gain a better understanding of metro Atlanta's workforce ecosystem – namely, who is doing what, where, and for whom. The portal provides the most comprehensive picture of our workforce ecosystem. Providers in the portal can share information on the populations and geographies they serve, the services (job search & placement, postemployment services, supportive services, and soft skills training) they provide, the specific occupations and industries they support, and more. The MAX Provider Council oversees and informs the ongoing development of the MAX Provider Portal. Click here to access the MAX Provider Portal. If your organization is not already represented in the MAX Provider Portal, click here to get on the map today.

MAX RESOURCE LIBRARY

The MAX Resource Library is a central clearinghouse for reports, studies, data tools, websites, online portals, and other sources of information related to workforce development to keep workforce partners informed. From data on workforce trends and barriers to the latest on the skills gap and economic mobility, a wealth of information is at your fingertips through this clearinghouse. Resources can be added to the MAX Resource Library through the recommendation of MAX members. The MAX Data Council oversees and informs the ongoing development of the MAX Resource Library.
